

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder

Its superiority is unquestioned
Its fame world-wide
Its use a protection and a guarantee against alum food

The low-grade powders are made from "phosphate alum," or "sodium aluminum sulphate," which is also alum, a mineral acid, and that makes the food unhealthy.

One pound of the imitation (25c.) powders contains five ounces of alum, a mineral poison.

Food baked with alum baking powders is found to contain a portion of the alum unchanged.

The continued use of alum made food impairs digestion, causing dyspepsia. The careful housewife when buying baking powder, will examine the label and take only a brand whose label shows the powder to be made from cream of tartar.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. A VERY NICE PROFESSOR

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1919, by Associated Literary Press

When Professor Watson took the stage at Ellsworth to ride over to Diamondville the limousine liked his looks and talk. He hadn't been in the village a day when we all liked his looks and talk. He was a little, roly poly man of fifty and gave out that he was a professor of metaphysics in a New England college. His age was about fifty, and he carried a smile on his face that would have pulled a crocus out of the ground a month ahead of time.

In Diamondville lived the Widow Steadman. She was forty years old and well off. She was being courted by the town constable, who was an old bachelor. It was said they were engaged, but the arrival of the very nice professor wrought a change. In a week he had made her acquaintance and was calling on her. In a fortnight the nose of the town constable was out of joint. The professor appeared to be in the best of health, but he claimed that metaphysics had broken him down and that he had come to the village for rest.

The constable was called stupid as an officer—good hearted, but stupid. We hadn't asked him up correctly as to the stupid one, as soon as he discovered that he was being thrown down he began to study the professor. He wrote to him a dozen letters and was told that they had never heard of the man. By accident he got hold of a paper that put him on the right trail. He went up to the city and had a talk with the police.

One June day the stage from the railroad rolled in, and its cargo consisted of eleven women. They might have been said to be of all ages, sexes and colors. As the vehicle halted at the inn Professor Watson sat on the veranda. He was put under arrest by a detective and his nerve right through it. He was taken to jail, and the jailer said he was one of the nicest men he ever met. The officers had a case against him bigger than his. He had practiced bigamy for twenty years. He had married girls, spinners, widows and old women. One of the victims was sixty-five years old. He had got away from some of them, but in didn't seem as if that was his motive. As he explained it:

"My dear, your name is Hannah, is it? I remember, and though your call is unexpected, you are nevertheless welcome." Then he took up the case of Jane Betsy. Mary, and so on. Every woman there was his wife, and a wife he had abandoned, and yet he carried that smile and his nerve right through it. He was taken to jail, and the jailer said he was one of the nicest men he ever met. The officers had a case against him bigger than his. He had practiced bigamy for twenty years. He had married girls, spinners, widows and old women. One of the victims was sixty-five years old. He had got away from some of them, but in didn't seem as if that was his motive. As he explained it:

"Why, I just fell in love, and she fell in love, and we were married. Really, I didn't know I had married a man."

And when the women were asked to explain they answered:

"Why, he's such a very, very nice man that we couldn't help it. He's just too sweet for anything."

And, would you believe it, the Widow Steadman, who would have made the twelfth, was the first one to send him a bouquet and her sympathies after he had been let out.

The professor hadn't gone far ahead. He had done all his marrying within a radius of 200 miles. He had made a nice, kind husband while it lasted. He had painted kitchen floors, washed dishes and whitewashed cellars. Yes, the officers thought they had him dead to rights, but they soon learned to the contrary. Only one woman out of the eleven was willing to swear against the man. The county had the whole gang on its hands to lodge and board.

The wife who was willing to do it was an old maid and so lonely and lonely as to excite general remark. For a time she was here to send the little man to a place where the dogs couldn't bite him. None of the ten others would speak to her. She was sent for by the professor. When she had arrived at the jail, determined that his captivity should not move her, he held out his arms to her and said:

"Birdie, you can't find it in your heart to do it. You are too noble and generous. If I hadn't seen the nobility of your character in your face I should never have trusted my happiness in your keeping."

She believed him and fell on his shoulder and wept. When the trial was at last called not one of the eleven was complainant. When put on the stand as witnesses they were no good. They perjured themselves, and they wrangled and twisted and made all sorts of excuses for the man, and the jury had to strain a point to convict him. He got a sentence of three years, and before being taken to prison he had interviewed with the eleven in succession, and to each one he said:

"Never mind, darling. Three years will soon pass away, and then we will be with each other again, to part never more."

And the constable didn't marry the Widow Steadman. She said he wasn't even a little bit nice and that it was none of his business how many wives the very, very nice Professor Watson had.

SUNDAY AT WESLEY.

Marked increase in Sunday School and Encouraging Day.

Sunday showed a marked increase in the attendance at Wesley Sunday school, and it was a very encouraging day for the school, as there were several new members added to the roll and a number of visitors present.

Six classes showed an attendance of 100 per cent, and it was hard to decide as to the awarding of the banner, however, the final decision gave the banner for attendance to Mr. H. H. Mock's class of men and the banner for new pupils was retained by Rev. E. H. Casey's Bible class.

At 11 o'clock the sermon by the pastor was in behalf of the Woman's Foreign Mission Society, as this society had just closed its week of prayer. The sermon at this hour could only intensify and enliven the interest in this grand work—a work in which so much has been accomplished by the women of the M. E. Church, South, in a few years. Every one who heard this sermon should feel deeply impressed with the command "Go ye to all the world and preach the gospel," and should feel, if he can not go, that he should send or help to send a representative.

A collection was taken for the benefit of the W. F. M. S., to which a liberal response was made.

At the 7 o'clock service the pastor preached another splendid sermon, as was the basis of his remarks this text "Follow me and I will make you fishers of men."

There were five additions to the church during the day.
